

As a trial gardener you MUST DESTROY all corms and cormels at the end of the season, no matter how much you like it or how pretty it is. Only each gardener's honesty makes this system work. This is to protect the hybridizer and catalogers. Catalogers are asked not to infringe on other catalogers with AAS introductions for five years, unless you have received permission. When you have received permission, please notify Doris Hartline so she can make a note of it. If you love the glad, purchase it, use it for shows, cut flowers, hybridize it, but please do not list it. Yes, we realize accidental mistakes can be made. Thank you for your service as a gardener. During the trial gardens you may show the glad and hybridize with it.

We notice that some gardeners will put "worthy of introduction" on a glad that scores 80 or above and others will put "not worthy of introduction" at 82 or 83. This is fine as long as you are consistent. We notice some gardeners will score higher across the board and others lower across the board. This is why we have not set a certain score as worthy of introduction. Consistency by each gardener will come up with the same results.

Make sure you total your score and indicate whether it is worthy of introduction at the top of the score sheet. Please do not make us guess what your intentions are. As we notice, for some people, 82 is a yes and for others it is a no. This will certainly help the tabulator and be greatly appreciated.

As noted on the front page, the most telling factor is "would you purchase this glad". Because of less corms being needed for introduction than the old AA trials, we have omitted cormel production and inserted "would you purchase this glad".

To help the tabulator and the catalogers that want to introduce the new AAS and list them in their new catalog, please have your score sheets sent to the tabulator by October 31.

Mail your completed score sheets to: Doris Hartline

Please keep a record of each glads score and whether it is worthy of introduction in case of loss during mailing. NAGC will be in charge of all AAS trials and gardens and makes no warrants or guarantees of the stock you will receive. All score sheets can be viewed at the AAS meeting at the national convention.
